As part of its regular business operations, the Commission will occasionally need to collect personally identifiable information, including name, title, mailing address, e-mail address, telephone number, and credit card information. The Commission will collect this information only if you provide it voluntarily, though the information is required for certain Commission business processes.

As part of registration for Commission-sponsored conferences, workshops, and other events, or during the purchase of publications from the Commission, personally identifiable information may be provided to the Commission's business partners for the purpose of processing payments. The Commission does not allow its business partners to use this information for any other purpose(s). The Commission expects its business partners to follow appropriate standards to safeguard the integrity of personally identifiable information.

In addition, as part of the Commission's conferences, workshops, and other events, certain information may be provided to the Commission's carefully selected exhibitors, sponsors, and business partners.
